July 20/21: 16th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Sixteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

The role of women in the Church is a frequent topic of discussion among contemporary Catholics. All points of view find representation in the women of today's Scriptures. These women lived in an entirely different era and culture, but their faith is our faith -- the faith of our fathers and mothers.

The author of this Sunday's Genesis account is called "J" because of the author's practice of referring to God as Jehovah. Abraham and Sarah welcome the Lord as guest who confirms God's promise of a son despite the couple's advancing years.

Abraham is host, bringing water for the washing of feet and providing the shade of a tree for rest. The meal is a banquet, humorously described as "a little bread": a bushel of flour, curds, milk, and a choice calf! Sarah remains in the tent; society's customs forbid her from mingling with the male guests. She does the cooking, and nine months later the promise is fulfilled in the birth of Isaac.

Of all the evangelists, Luke has the greatest sensitivity to the role of women. He is the only one to record the miracle for the widow of Naim (Luke 7:11-17). In 8:1-3, he mentions the women who accompanied Jesus and the Twelve. Luke, in his Acts of the Apostles, talks about the role of Priscilla in founding a Christian community and instructing converts (Acts 18).

Martha, in this gospel account, is another Sarah -- found in the kitchen. Mary is a contrast to both in that Jesus welcomes her as a disciple, indicated by her presence at the Lord's feet and her attentiveness to his message. Women did not receive instruction in the Jewish Torah in this society, and so the portrayal of a female disciple is nothing less than shocking.

These readings challenge us to discard stereotypes. God's power overcomes the sterility of old age. Jesus' power transcends role models. What tasks need to be fulfilled to spread the Good News? How can women and men of all ages best use their God-given talents to benefit the community?
