and Daily Readings

Ah, the narrow door! A procrastinator by nature, I must confess that today's gospel makes me uncomfortable. Clean up my act, I say to myself, or I'll find myself in that throng, knocking on heaven's door, at risk of joining those who are weeping and gnashing their teeth because they realize that they took for granted all the promise of the kingdom of God.

But just as I am stewing about being ready to enter heaven, I am reminded, "some are last who will be first, and some are first who will be last." With this, my earthly sense of fair play kicks in and I am, yet again, full of righteous indignation that those who seemingly haven't played by the rules are going to bypass the rest of us. So much for my preparedness for passage through that narrow door!

Today we are reminded that we cannot impose earthly rules and expectations on eternal life. God offers all of us passage to the kingdom, but we are required, as St. Paul notes, to live a life of discipline – God's discipline. Being loved by God does not mean we won't face trials and pain, but out of our experiences comes the "peaceful fruit of righteousness", the very kind of sustenance that draws people to the banquet in the kingdom of God.
