Nineteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Sunday, August 7th, 2016

1st Reading: Wisdom 18.6-9

Responsorial Psalm: Ps 33.1+12, 18-19, 20+22

Second Reading: Hebrews 11.1-2, 8-19

Gospel: Luke 12.32-48

In our first reading today from the Book of Ecclesiastes, its author, Qoheleth, wrote some 2300 years ago: "All is vanity." In this book from the Hebrew Scriptures, the Teacher, as his name translates, relays to us from across the millennia the stark futility of our reality. The good suffer, heartbreaks beset us all and in the end everyone dies. This is as true of life today as then.

Still, we foolishly strive to amass personal wealth and seek to protect it from others. For example, one estimate places yearly global military expenditures at more than $1.75 trillion. This does not include all that we spend on our individual efforts to safeguard our property and persons. How much would it cost per year to adequately house, feed and educate the needy on our planet? The world's 85 richest people have as much accumulated wealth as the poorest 3.5 billion inhabitants. Where does our security truly lie? Where is justice?

The parable Jesus tells in the gospel reading today calls on us to be on guard "against all kinds of greed," striving for what matters to God, not seeking an "abundance of possessions" as our life's purpose. Meaning in our all-too-short lives comes from one source and one source alone, God. As Paul writes to the Colossians, "Christ is all and in all."
