TREASURES FROM OUR TRADITION

The Oil of the Sick, usually labeled OI (for Oleum Infirmarum), is often reserved with chrism and the oil of catechumens in an ambry. An ambry is a cabinet, often beautifully ornamented and kept near the baptistery in the church. Olive oil, with no fragrance added, is blessed at the Chrism Mass in Holy Week by the bishop, although there is now a provision for a priest to bless oil if none is available. This restores to our Latin Rite practice a tradition never lost in the Eastern tradition, in which priests consecrate the oil of the sick, even at the sick person's home. Any vegetable oil may be used now, since olive oil is difficult to obtain in some places. Many priests keep a small supply of oil close at hand in a small metal tube called a "stock."

In the former rite, every sense of the body was anointed, accompanied by a prayer for forgiveness of sin. So, the eyes, ears, nostrils, mouth, hands, and feet were all touched. Today, this is simplified to an anointing of the forehead and the hands, but generally today the oil is used more lavishly, and the symbolism of touch so central to the rite is enhanced. Often, a priest will invite everyone present to join in the "laying on of hands." Sick persons are often pushed aside or feared in our culture, and to be reverently touched in love can be a profound experience of God's healing, forgiving, accepting presence through the ministry of the Church.

From Bishop Fabbro:

As you will recall, in preparation for the 2014 Extraordinary Synod on the Family, the Holy See provided a series of survey questions and invited a broad-based consultation. These questions were posted on the Diocese of London website in December of 2013. In response to this invitation, more than 340 participants completed the questionnaire or some part of it. In preparation for the 2015 Ordinary Synod of Bishops on "The Vocation and the Mission of the Family in the Church and in the Contemporary World", the Holy See is once again seeking the input of the whole Church. To this end, the Canadian Bishops are providing a series of survey questions that have been adapted for use in Canada. The consultation is seeking reflections on the reality in each diocese and concrete suggestions and best practices for pastoral action. I invite all parish leaders, Priests, Deacons, Lay Ecclesial Ministers and Parish Pastoral Council members, parents and those who assist families on their journey: teachers, principals, family counsellors and social workers as well as all parishioners, to complete this survey, which will be available online on the Diocese of London website, www.dol.ca, from January 16 to February 15, 2015.

For those wishing to complete the survey in French, please visit the website of the Canadian Bishops at www.cccb.ca.
