Thirty-second Sunday in Ordinary Time November 6, 2016

Now is the month for special memories of our faithful departed and for prayers for those who are in purgatory on their way to the vision of God in heaven. The readings this week signal the courage of men and women who are not fearful of death. They are constant in their trust in God's plans for them - to welcome them home after the sufferings of this life into the fulfillment of their lives in eternal life. While good arguments for the 'immortality of the soul' can convince us of this truth, the witness of courage in the faithful - like the woman and her seven sons who braved the persecution told in today's first reading - convinces us all the more that nothing we endure in this life is hopeless, not even the threat of death. This is why society's acceptance of euthanasia is so de-humanizing, for it provides people without courage the easy-way out, the avoidance of suffering which is an element of our human condition, a negation of life which is a natural result of what Pope St. John Paul II called "the culture of death." We are called to the culture of life in every stage of our experience, including our relationships with one another and with every creature under the sun. With Jesus, our desire is for life, and not for death. Yet we embrace death in the spirit of St. Francis who called death "brother" as the opening of the door to life eternal. For death we have a natural fear of loss, but courage is something entirely different; it is that virtue by which we face everything in our way through life with hope and trust in the very goal for which we are made and live the goal of life eternal with God our creator, redeemer, and lover.

With thanksgiving to God, we are grateful for the gift of His presence in our beautiful new St. Michael's church. A few finishing touches are needed yet as we move into our new worship and gathering places. It's consecration and dedication by Bishop Fabbro and his Auxiliary, Bishop Joseph (who spent early years of his priesthood here at St. Michael's), along with many parishioners and visitors from far and near, give us a mere taste of the eternal beauty of our life with God in heaven yet to come. I repeat what was said so often before; all the memories of joy and sorrow celebrated in the old building, and all we have celebrated with the walls of St. Joseph's church are contained within these four new walls ... the unbroken life of our parish family holds us together and points us outwards in our mission to live our faith with new courage into the generations to come, in the changing circumstances of our time. May the Lord give deep joy to all of you who participated in the rebuilding project - our building committee, many donors, fund-raising leaders, children in our schools, and day to day contributors and volunteers from our many ministries among God's people and in our city and countryside.

With our prayer intentions focussed on those who are suffering in any way.

Father Patrick

In the month of October we welcomed into St. Michael's Parish the following children through the waters of baptism:

Ellio Joseph Oliveira
Liviana Helene Drouillard
Reid Everett Kerwin
Annalise Christine Causarano
Hadley Joseph Furtado
Massimo Norberto Fortuna

May we be gifted in unity to serve God and all peoples in authentic love

ST MICHAEL COMMEMORATIVE PRINT

The cut-off date for the commemorative print is November 11th. If you still wish to purchase a print, please call the office to order ASAP. The print would make an excellent Christmas gift and a wonderful commemoration of the new St. Michael's Church.

THIRTY-THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

In the beginning, all things came to be. At the end, things as we know them will cease to be. Does anything really last forever? Certainly not temples, not nations not even the foundations of the earth. So, what does last forever? God, the wisdom of Jesus, divine Life.
