THE SACRED LITURGY THIS WEEK

Monday, October 17th St. Ignatius of Antioch. Born in Syria in the middle of the 1st century and instructed by the Apostle John. He became the Bishop of Antioch around 70 AD. In 107 Emperor Trajan demanded he deny his belief in Jesus Christ and publicly speak out against our faith. He refused and to make an example of him he was sentenced to death by lions. Ten soldiers were assigned to guard him on the trip from Antioch to Rome. Along the way he wrote seven letters which we still have today encouraging the Christian community to serve the poor and needy and to be faithful to the Lord and to follow the teachings of their bishop. On the journey they were met at different places by the local bishop and many members of the Christian community who came to honor him. He blessed everyone and told them he would pray for them. He said that his death would be his birth—into the new life made possible by Jesus’ Resurrection.

Tuesday October 18 St. Luke the Evangelist, the inspired author of the third Gospel and of the Acts of the Apostles, was a physician from Antioch in Syria and an early convert from paganism. He accompanied St. Paul on a considerable part of his missionary journey and his account contained in the Acts, is firsthand history. Luke’s Gospel is, above all, the Gospel of the Merciful Heart of Jesus. It emphasizes the fact that Christ is the salvation of all men, especially of the repentant sinner and of the lowly.

7th Spiritual Work of Mercy

To Pray for the Living and the Dead

Catholic convert Mary Karr in her memoir, “Lit,” describes that while an agnostic, she was urged to pray by someone in her recovery group. She wondered what it would be like to pray to a reality in which she did not believe and took up the dare by her friend to “just see what happens” and prayed dutifully each day and night for thirty days. When she looked back, she noted many positive changes in her life over those four weeks.

Prayer ultimately opens us up to a Reality that transcends, transforms and gives us access to resources beyond us; powers and forces in which we live and think; which are often beyond our consciousness because we become so absorbed in the detail of daily life. By opening ourselves up to the Transcendent, we open ourselves, in obedient trust, to receiving what otherwise seems inaccessible in our lives.

Catholics, in particular, see prayer as connecting us to God as the Triune reality of generous love, shared love, given love: the very nature of God is to live for the other—Father living for Son, Son for Father, each living in the Spirit they share. But Catholics also see ourselves open to relationship with others, including those present in our lives and those who, though dead, now live in the Kingdom of God. We call this “the communion of saints,” or, perhaps more tellingly, “the community of the holy”—of those who have been graced, touched, and transformed by God.

Praying for the living and the dead means to join in furthering the union of all creation with the Creator, who is Absolute Love. It means wishing to others the greatest good we can possibly wish them: relation to, and union with, God as Absolute Love. It means participating in a stream of love that flows from God from the first instance of creation all the way through to creation’s completeness in the Kingdom of God. As we participate in that stream, we amplify and reflect its reality in creation.

Prayer has two ultimate orientations: adoration and petition. The root meaning of adoration is worship and it is the highest form of love. Its heartfelt expression to God carries within it trust, thanksgiving and contrition.

Petition recognizes the incompleteness in the lives of others and ourselves and calls us to look upon others in their hurt, sorrow, struggles, and imperfections; as we see this around and within us, we ask God to fill in what is lacking, to give the health to the one who is sick, the patience to the one who suffers, the wisdom to one who is confused, the mercy to the one who feels caught.

Adoration joins all of creation in voiced and unvoiced joy as we exalt in what God has accomplished, how God’s perfections have begun to take hold, on a different but actual level, among God’s creatures. If petition arises out of compassion, adoration arises out of admiration—the sheer wonder of what God brings about in the divine Love and action in our lives.

To pray for the living and the dead is to become part of the unending stream of divine Mercy, that loving vision which comprehends the brokenness and sin of the world, and that loving power which draws created reality beyond its brokenness and sin into a communion of life and love. ~ Excerpts from essay by Fr. Frank DeSiano, CSP
