THE CHURCH AND THE KINGDOM OF GOD

The reality that sustains us, prepares us for, and moves us closer toward that Second Coming and the fullness of the kingdom is the Church. For this reason the Church is described as "the seed" of the Kingdom of God by the Second Vatican Council.

When believers gather at Sunday Mass, they speak the words of the Nicene Creed and profess their belief in one, holy, catholic and apostolic Church. It is important to note that just as we specify placing our belief in God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, we also mention by name the Church as an object of faith. Why? Because the Church is the Body of Christ, Who is its head, in Whom all the individual members are united with each other, and which is joined to Christ as bride to bridegroom.

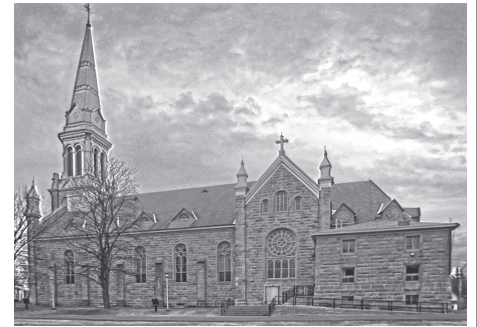

Members of the Church have thus been called out of a former way of life, called away from sin to be joined together into the temple of the Spirit by Christ himself. The goal of this assembly is precisely life in Christ, that is, Salvation (see Catechism of the Catholic Church 169).

The Church exists because people need saving. That is why the Second Vatican Council restated the ancient understanding that outside the Church Salvation is not possible (see Catechism of the Catholic Church 846). This statement may seem at first to be shocking, until one reflects on the word "outside." In other words, the Church is meant for everyone in the world because her head, the Lord Jesus, is the sole mediator between God and all people. He alone is the way to Salvation, and He is present to us in His Body, which is the Church.

Jesus explicitly asserts the necessity of faith and Baptism (see Mark 16:16 and John 3:5), and thereby affirms the necessity of the Church which all enter through Baptism. The teaching on the Church as the sole vehicle by which all men and women have access to the Kingdom of God is meant to be less a judgment of the non-baptized than it is an explanation of the Church's all-encompassing role in helping the world toward the Kingdom of God (see Catechism of the Catholic Church 543). Indeed, the Church affirms that all those who seek God with a sincere heart, and prompted by grace, strive in their actions to do God's will through the dictates of their conscience, may attain Salvation. A bond exists between all peoples, deriving from a common origin and destiny in God. Thus, whatever is good and true in other religions comes from God and reflects, however incompletely, the awesome truth of His kingdom.

In the Lord's Prayer Christians pray, "Thy kingdom come." We proclaim that we are forward looking. We are disciples fixing our gaze on the fullness of the kingdom that will be brought to us by Christ the Lord. Envisioning that glorious future, we are energized to work toward it now. We humbly contribute to the building up of God's kingdom in both small and large ways. Because our hearts and minds are permeated by the vision of Gospel justice, peace, and love, everything we do is potentially transforming during this in-between time in which we live.
