Offertory Envelopes for 2016

Offertory envelope boxes are available at the back of the church.

They are arranged in numerical order. A list of envelope users with names in alphabetical order is there as well, to help parishioners who may have forgotten their envelope number.

What if You are New to the Parish?

Please take a box of envelopes with no name on it. Fill out the parish registration form and put it into the collection basket the next opportunity you have.

Please put your name and address on the outside of the envelope for the first several weeks.

Being Good Stewards

Stewardship is different from ownership. A steward doesn't own; he holds in trust and uses what he has been given for the one who owns it.

The title deed to our lives and the entire universe is in God's name.

Nothing belongs to us, not even our lives. As much as I might like to define myself by the size of my home, the make and model of my car, or my title at work, everything I am and everything I have is God's.

Though we don't own anything, God has graciously entrusted us with the care, development, and enjoyment of everything God owns. As God's stewards, we are to manage his holdings well and according to God's desires and purposes. And it stands to reason that if everything belongs to God, then every decision a leader makes has spiritual implications.

We are not only responsible for using our own gifts for God's purposes, but for helping others use their gifts as well. This means our most important responsibility is to empower the people under our authority to discover, develop, and use the abilities

God has given them. This includes our family, those who work with or for us in the workplace, and men and women in the church and community we serve.
