3RD SUNDAY OF ORDINARY TIME

“Tell me, what is it you plan to do with your one wild and precious life?”
Mary Oliver

If you have hit the milestone of being 40 years old, then a midlife crisis may be only a few years away. For most people, it is less a crisis and more of a time to take stock. It’s a time to reflect on the life we are living compared to the life we want to live and then having the courage to make the necessary changes.

This period of transition is informed by our life experience, the wisdom we have acquired, a reorganizing of our priorities that comes with raising a family or losing loved ones. The outcome of this period can be influenced by our mindset. Are we aware of our emotions and motivations or is this something that just happens to us over which we have no control? Is it the beginning of the end with our best years behind us, or do we dream of what might come next?

“Tell me, what is it you plan to do with your one wild and precious life?”

Jesus had his own midlife transition. When he stood in the temple and unrolled the scroll, it marked the end of his life as a carpenter and the beginning of his public ministry. His best years were in front of him. It took courage and faith for him to declare and claim his work.

“Tell me, what is it you plan to do with your one wild and precious life?”

The truth is, we are faced with transitional moments throughout our life: when a young person leaves home to attend university or college; when a couple decides to get married and start a family; when a person changes employers; when a family experiences a loss through separation, divorce, or death; or when we move to a new neighbourhood or into a retirement community.

Transitions can be joyful, filled with anxiety, challenging, or all three. Regardless, we can face them with courage and faith trusting that the best is yet to come.

“Tell me, what is it you plan to do with your one wild and precious life?”

Blessings, Paige
