Marriages: Marriages are celebrated in the Church where the bride or groom is registered at. When a man and a woman plan to marry each other, they should contact a priest one year in advance and always before the wedding date is set, and before arranging for the reception hall. The engaged are required to attend a Marriage Preparation Course.

Please note: However, if this man or woman has previously gone through any form of civil or religious marriage with another person, the priest is not permitted to set a date for the wedding until the Bishop's office has been consulted. Questions are often being asked about marriages performed outside the Catholic Church by non-Catholic ministers. These are not valid marriages according to the teaching of the Catholic Church, but many can be rectified by simply consulting with your Parish priest to discuss the available options. Sometimes people make decisions without proper information, so if you wish, please contact your Pastor for details or call the Marriage Tribunal at 416-934-3400 ext 300.

THE SHORTEST PAPACIES OF ALL TIME? POPE JOHN PAUL I BARELY MAKES THE LIST

10 other popes had shorter pontificates.

Urban VII - pope for 13 days, Sept. 15–27, 1590. Born Giambattista Castagna in Rome. His father was of Genoan nobility. His uncle was a cardinal. He held doctorates in civil and canon law. He worked in government on behalf of the papacy, which at the time held civil power over parts of Italy. He led commissions during the Council of Trent and helped organize the military alliance against the Ottoman Empire, according to the New Catholic Encyclopedia. He was appointed archbishop in 1553, a cardinal in 1583. Once pope, he addressed the needs of the poor. As God’s providence allowed, he did not have time to do much more than plan. He died of malaria at the age of 69. In his will, he left his personal fortune to support poor girls.

Celestine IV reigned for 15 days, Oct. 25–Nov. 10, 1241. Born Goffredo da Castiglione in Milan. He spent time with the Cistercian religious order and was a cardinal bishop of Sabina. He was a nephew of Pope Urban III. He was in poor health when he was elected, when the papacy was a center of political conflict between backers and opponents of Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II.

Boniface VI reigned for 16 days, April 11–26, 896. Born in Rome. Not much is known about this pope. Records indicate that he was canonically deprived of holy orders twice: first as a subdeacon, and then as a priest. His past caused controversy over his election, the New Catholic Encyclopedia says.

Theodore II reigned for 20 days in December 897. He loved peace. Lived a life of chastity and charity to the poor. He came to power after a low point of the papacy. Pope Theodore annulled the acts of the “Cadaver Synod,” which had put on trial the corpse of his predecessor, Pope Formosus. He recovered the dead Roman Pontiff’s body from the River Tiber and gave it a proper burial. He also reinstated clergy who had been forced to resign.

Sisinnius - pope for 21 days, Jan. 15–Feb. 4, 708. Born in Syria. The papacy was responsible for the military defense of Rome, with Lombards invading from the north of Italy and Muslim armies advancing from the south. Sisinnius ordered the walls of Rome to be reinforced as his first act, the New Catholic Encyclopedia says. Before he died, Pope Sisinnius ordained one priest and consecrated a bishop for Corsica.

Marcellus II - pope for about 22 days in April & May, 1555. Born Marcello Cervini, in Tuscany. His father worked under several pontificates. Before he was elected pope he served roles as a secretary to popes and cardinals, including work to correct the Julian calendar. He was engaged with the “New Learning” of Renaissance humanism. Served as protector of the Vatican Library. Cervini served the Vatican at the time of its response to the Protestant Reformation. He was a president at the Council of Trent, which continued through his pontificate. He was a Church reformer and hoped to pursue this path during his papacy. He was not consecrated a bishop until the day after he was elected pope. He reputedly became sick from overwork during the celebrations of Holy Week and Easter, and the illness turned fatal.

Damasus II reigned for 24 days in July and August, 1048.

This pontiff was named Poppo. He was born in Bavaria and was of German extraction. He served as Bishop of Brixen in Tyrol, in what is now western Austria. Popes at the time could be nominated in an unusual manner. Pope Damasus II was named by Holy Roman Emperor Henry III. The pope, however, soon died of malaria.

Pius III - pope for 27 calendar days, Sept. 22–Oct. 18, 1503.

Born Francesco Todeschini in Siena. The nephew of Pope Pius II. His uncle took him into his household and became his patron, allowing the young man to add the pontiff’s family name Piccolomini to his own last name. Francesco studied canon law. His uncle named him to become administrator of the Archdiocese of Siena and later made him a cardinal-deacon. The future Roman Pontiff had a reputation of living an upright life as a cultured, gentle man, the New Catholic Encyclopedia reports. He took part in several conclaves of his time, including that which elected Alexander VI. His service to the papacy included several diplomatic appointments to Germany, France, and Perugia. Francesco’s own papal election took place amid ruling Italian families’ disputes over control of Rome and included an unsuccessful power play by the Borgia family. Pius III was known to be in poor health. At the time of the papal coronation he was already suffering from a diseased leg, which developed into a septic ulcer. He died at the age of 64

Leo XI - pope for 27 days, from April 1–27, 1605. Florentine-born Alessandro de Medici was a member of the famous Medici family. He was grand-nephew to Pope Leo X. He sought to become a priest from an early age, but because his mother objected he was not ordained until after she died, according to the New Catholic Encyclopedia. He served as an ambassador to Rome on behalf of Tuscany, before he began to advance in the Church. He eventually became a bishop, then archbishop of Florence, before named a cardinal. He served as a papal legate to France and was head of the Congregation of Bishops. Among his friends was St. Philip Neri, founder of the Oratorians. He was elected pope at the age of 69 and became sick almost immediately.

Benedict V - pope for 33 days, May 22–June 23, 964. Born in Rome with a reputation for great learning. He reigned at a time of great turmoil in the Church. Holy Roman Emperor Otto I had interfered with the pontificates of his predecessors. The emperor had forcibly deposed a pope and installed his own nominee on the See of Peter. There were rival claimants to the papacy under Benedict V and Otto again interfered, laying siege to Rome and taking the pope away from Rome by force. Benedict either renounced the papacy or was forcibly deposed. He lived in exile in Hamburg for another year.

John Paul I served as Roman Pontiff from Aug. 26–Sept. 28, 1978, 33 calendar days. He had a reputation for humility and for teaching the faith in an understandable way. The future John Paul I took part in the Second Vatican Council and was named patriarch of Venice. As a cardinal, Luciani published a collection of “open letters” to historic figures, saints, famous writers, and fictional characters. The book, “Illustrissimi,” included letters to Jesus, King David, Mark Twain, Charles Dickens, and Christopher Marlowe, and Pinocchio and Figaro, the barber of Seville. He was the first pope to have two names. He took his papal name from his immediate predecessors, Sts. John XXIII and Paul VI. - Catholic News Agency
