Quando diciamo "Noi siamo servi inutili; abbiám fatto quel ch'eravamo in obbligo di fare. " (Lc 17,10) non dobbiamo per questo concludere che Dio sia un padrone opprimente e che la vita cristiana sia rispettare delle regole. Come il padre del Figliol Prodigio, Dio si rallegra per noi. Questa parabola di Gesù parla di noi non di Dio. Ci ricorda che non dobbiamo credere di fare un favore al Signore osservando i suoi comandamenti nella nostra vita. Questo ci permette di sentirci liberi di offrire la nostra vita a Dio come un dono, ossia lavorare con amore con la gioia di donarsi.

Say, "We are unprofitable servants; we have only done our duty." We shouldn't take from this that God is a slave driver and that the Christian life is just pressed service. Like the father of the prodigal son, God rejoices over us. This saying of Jesus is about us not about God. It tells us we should not imagine that we are doing God a favour by living our lives. This sets us free to work for God for nothing, or rather to work for love, for joy.

Digamos: "Somos siervos inútiles; sólo hemos cumplido con nuestro deber." No debemos tomar de esto que Dios es un capataz de esclavos y que la vida cristiana es simplemente puro servicio. Como el padre del hijo pródigo, Dios se regocija sobre nosotros. Este dicho de Jesús se trata de nosotros no se trata de Dios. Nos dice que no debemos imaginar que estamos haciendole un favor a Dios al vivir nuestras vidas. Esto mas bien nos hace libres para trabajar para Dios por nada, o mejor dicho a trabajar por amor, por gozo.

He died in 1604.
