great and you have fashioned all your works in wisdom and love," and that "time and time again you offered [all people] covenants and through the prophets taught them to look forward to salvation."

In this weekend's first reading the woman who regularly fed Elisha recognized that he was a "holy man of God" and was rewarded accordingly. And Jesus reminds us that these rewards for are not only for those who recognize welcome the prophets, but all who welcome and recognize the righteous and those sent in his name. Next week we learn to recognize Jesus as a King.
Not a king in pomp and majesty, but humble and gentle, riding on a donkey. He invites us to learn from him his divine wisdom, and promises that in his humility and gentleness we will find rest for our souls.

As we enter this month of July, I invite you to pray with me for the recent graduates of all levels of education, and to pray for all the students on summer holidays. I pray that each person be touched by the wisdom of God during these days, and that we may encounter God in all our activities, letting him renew us and give us rest. And for those who travel, I pray for safety and enjoyment.

S. Marice

Reflection for the Week

Whoever welcomes you, welcomes me and whoever welcomes me welcomes the one who sent me. (Matt. 10:40) Lord, show me how to be witness of generous love.

Two Week Bulletin — July 1st and 9th, 2017

From The Pastors Desk...

During this month of July, the readings for Mass lend themselves to the theme of recognizing God's Kingdom: thus we will be looking at the ways that we receive the word of God, whether it be in the person of a prophet or in a parable. During this month, Fr. Jim and I (and our guest presiders while I am on pilgrimage in the Holy Land) will be using Eucharistic Prayer IV, which, in addressing God the Father, states, "...you are
