Ruminations...

Grade 13 chemistry was the only class I ever remember choosing to sit in the front seats in a classroom. It was out of pure love for the subject. My preferred location was at the back. That pattern extended into university as well. Third year Sports Administration (SpAd) was a strictly commerce year and so we left our track pants and gym bags behind and took up normal clothes and briefcases. Once again I found myself elevated at the back sitting at the raised desk, but it soon became obvious, I couldn't read the blackboard too well and my SpAd partner got tired of dictating the notes for me. That was 1981 and I have worn glasses since then, though I don't need them to read. In fact my vision continues to deteriorate, I actually need to remove them to read. Therein lies one of the problems. Last week I accidentally sat on my glass. After 34 years of wearing glasses, I finally goofed with them. Luckily I had already booked my much overdue appointment to get my eyes checked. Right from the get go I knew something was amiss. I was asked to look into this contraption and focus on the balloon on the screen. I asked if she was pulling my leg because there was no balloon on the screen. She adjusted a few things and then asked me to look at the balloon. Again, I replied that there was no balloon. So she instructed me to just look forward into the centre pretending that I saw a balloon. It was inevitable that I needed a new prescription so off to the selection walls of frames I went. It is always difficult to determine which pair would look best, especially when I can't see myself clearly in the mirrors. The 'eye glasses specialist' grabbed a half dozen or so of ones she thought would look good. My only real criteria was that the glasses be fitted with clip on sunglasses. I have done the separate sunglasses and they don't work for me. I would prefer just to clip a set on, so as long as they look somewhat cool, it would be an easy sell. The various styles really were too similar to say definitively that this or that one was 'the pair.' After the eighth pair, the process became tiresome and I had this epiphany, once I don the glasses, I no longer am affected by them – I am behind them. It is everyone else who has to contend with the looks of them. It then became easy, not quite rock, paper, scissors, but I went for comfort more than anything else. So next week when they arrive and I will start wearing them, if you happen to notice, just say they look comfortable, because that is why I have them. Now the big question is should I get a second pair just in case I sit on the new ones?

Announcements and Events...

Humanitarian Refugee Relief Project Hope

In response to this global humanitarian crisis, Cardinal Thomas Collins has announced the launch of "Project Hope," a special emergency appeal to respond to the tragic situation.

The 100-day campaign will have a target of $3 million and a goal of settling 100 refugee families within the Greater Toronto Area as soon as possible. The effort will also require 100 volunteer committees to assist with settlement services. The archdiocese will prioritize refugees fleeing war and violence in areas of greatest need, including Syria and Iraq, regardless of religious affiliation.

Those wishing to support the campaign financially can do so in the following ways:

- Donate through the Archdiocese of Toronto website at: www.archtoronto.org
- By phone via credit card through the Development Office at: (416) 934-3411
- Through their local Catholic church, making cheques payable to – Name of Parish – Project Hope – Refugee Sponsorship

Thank you!

Awesome Response!

Although we are still waiting for a final tally as some people are still deciding on how they will contribute, we are speculating that we will exceed our target. That is a tribute to our fine team who worked over the summer to ensure that everyone had an opportunity to participate. It is also a testimony to the generosity and support of the parish. As the official component of our Campaign draws to a close, thank you for all your support.
