MARRIAGE QUESTIONS ...

Who can be married in the Catholic Church?

A man and a woman may be married in the Catholic church provided that one party to the marriage is a Catholic; also provided that both are free to enter into marriage in the Catholic church.

What if my fiancé is not a Catholic?

A Catholic may enter into marriage in the Catholic church with someone who is baptized in another Christian church or with an unbaptized person. In both cases the permission of the local bishop is required and obtained through the parish priest. A non-Catholic does not have to become a Catholic in order to marry in the church.

Does a Catholic have to be married in a Catholic church?

Catholics are required, by Church (Canon) Law, to be married in the presence of an ordained Catholic deacon, priest or bishop and two witnesses of their choosing. Marriage is always celebrated in a church or chapel. A wedding ceremony (involving a Catholic and a baptized Christian) may take place in a non-Catholic church or chapel, with permission of the local bishop. Catholic weddings are not celebrated in gardens, backyards or reception halls.

What about separated and divorced Catholics?

Sadly, marriages do fail and it can become impossible for the couple to continue to live together. The teaching of the Church is that so long as that former spouse is living, one cannot enter into a new marriage unless the previous one has been declared null by the Church.

Separated and divorced Catholics are not prevented from receiving the Sacraments - especially the Eucharist - which will often be a source of comfort and strength for them.

What about a divorced Catholic who remarries?

A divorced Catholic who remarries, without a declaration of nullity from the Church for the previous marriage, are invited to a life of faith, prayer, charity and chastity. They may not receive sacramental absolution or Holy Communion, or exercise certain ministries within the Church, as long as their situation persists.

The Diocesan Marriage Tribunal assists individuals who seek the church's judgement on the validity of a previous bond of marriage in the hope of entering a new marriage in the Church.
