“We pray that believers’ witness of life may grow incredibility. To rediscover the content of the faith that is professed, celebrated, lived and prayed, and to reflect on the act of faith, is a task that all believers must make their own, especially in the course of this year.”

~Pope Benedict XVI, Apostolic Letter, Porta Fidei

Central Themes in Recent Church Teaching on the Environment:

3. “Human Ecology” and Its Relationship to Environmental Ecology:

If ecology implies a system of relationships and interactions, then we can say that maintaining a proper ecology of our natural environment is only possible when we foster a truly “human ecology,” that is, when we promote human relationships and interactions that respect the dignity of the human person, the common good, and nature. This is because of humanity’s unique place in creation. Central to this human ecology is the right to life of every human being, from conception to natural death.
