FAITH CORNER – THE LIVES OF THE SAINTS

Saint Gundelinis, otherwise known as Saint Gwynllyw, has been honored as a saint throughout Wales. He was the eldest son of a royal chieftain. After his father's death, Saint Gundelinis divided the inheritance among his six brothers. It was said that while he was young, he lived a reckless life, kidnapping his wife and becoming enamored with trivial worldly possessions. This changed when his wife, Gladusa, and he witnessed the presence of a spiritual voice stating: "I will show you the way you must walk to obtain God's inheritance. Lift up your hearts and do not imperil your souls by what is perishable." Both Gundelinis and his wife left their home, built separate small hermitage cells in caves on the side of a river, and gave their lives over to prayer, mortification, and labor. They lived eating only those foods that could be obtained without aggression, predominantly barley-bread and water, and wore only sackcloth. Their lives were filled with prayer and contemplation, as well as with reverence for all creation. After their deaths, many miracles of healing were said to have occurred at the site of their tombs. Both Gundelinis and Gladusa remain examples of dedicated holy individuals who sought to live in simplicity and in harmony with all of nature, and who believed strongly that one must live without inflicting harm upon other beings. Mystics, Ascetics & Monks
