AS A RIVER OF PEACE

This Sunday's Liturgy centres in a special way on peace as being of great benefit for the individual soul and for society. In the First Reading (Is 66:10-14) the Prophet Isaiah announces that the era of the Messiah will be characterized by an abundance of this divine gift; it will be like a torrent of peace, like an overflowing stream.

Nevertheless, after so many years, we can still see that the world is not at peace; it desires peace and clamours for it, but it does not find it. Even, it has been said, in many nations and countries, the general situation has little to do with peace. Not that there is war, or at least what we generally understand by war, but there is certainly a lack of peace. Race struggles, Class struggles. The struggle between ideologies and political parties. Terrorism. Guerrilla warfare. Kidnap and assassination attempts. Insecurity. Riots. Disputes. Violence. Hatred which brings resentment, accusations and recriminations.

F. Suarez, When the Son of Man Comes

In the beginning, before original sin had been committed, everything was ordered so as to give glory to God and happiness and peace to us. There were no such things as wars, hatred, anger, lack of understanding, injustice....Through that first sin, to which personal sins were subsequently added, man turned into a being who also could be selfish, proud, mean, avaricious...If we look at sin we will detect in it the cause of all the failings we see around us. John Paul II has pointed out that violence and injustice have their roots deep in the hearts of each individual, of each one of us. John Paul II, Message for World Day of Peace,

December 8, 1984. It is from the heart that come all the disorders that men are capable of committing against God, against their brothers and against themselves, provoking far down in their consciences a rent, a deep bitterness, a lack of peace that is necessarily reflected in the network of social life. But it is also from the human heart, from its great capacity to love, from its generosity in being willing to undergo sacrifice, that there can arise – made fruitful by Christ's grace – feelings of fraternity and works of service to men who 'like a stream of peace' (Is 66:12) work together for the construction of more just world, in which peace brings with it the badge of citizenship and impregnates all structure of society. (A. del Portillo, Homily, March 30, 1985)

Christ's presence in the hearts of His followers is the beginning of true peace. Such peace brings with it rich fulfillment. Saint Paul affirms that Christ Himself is our peace. (Eph 2:14)

There is no peace without contrition. There is no peace unless we are deeply sincere with ourselves and acknowledge those things in our lives that separate us from God and each other. There is no peace without deep, undiluted sincerity in Confession.

With this interior calm, we will find that by beginning over and over again and never complying with defects and shortcomings we will be able to go out into the world, to that space in which we spend each day of our lives, and spread around us that peace that the world does not have and consequently cannot give.

What house you enter, first say, 'Peace be to this house'....It is not simply a greeting – it is Christ's peace that his followers have to take out into all the paths of the world. The Christian who lives by faith is a person of peace who spreads serenity around and people feel at ease with them and others will seek their company. The peace of the world begins within the heart of each individual.

Fifteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

It's a simple concept:: love God with your whole being and put that love into practice. How is God calling you to love? Have you considered the way of loving called "priesthood" or "religious life"? If God is calling you, contact Father Hansoo Park 416-968-0997

The St. Vincent de Paul Society has an abundance of furniture. If anyone is in need, please contact the Church for the list of furniture available.

Quote For the Week

Do not think that my love for you or the good qualities you are endowed with, may have me desire that you be just little saints. No, I greatly desire that you become great saints, since you are well equipped to reach this goal... All that is required is that you really mean to develop and give back to Jesus Crucified, in a more refined form, the good qualities and graces He has given you".

Anthony Mary Zaccaria, Letter XI
