In Loving Memory

Reflection: The account of eating the 'forbidden fruit' only gives a pictorial account of 'the fall of humanity.' To the untrained mind, this could lead to the question "What kind of parent will expel their children from the house because they ate some fruit they were asked not to eat?" But it is not as simple as that. The sin of Adam and Eve is more grievous. They committed the sin of over-reaching; they wanted to be like God. You recall the words of the tempter, "... the moment you eat it, you will become like God." Humanity's attempt to over-reach is still prevalent in the world today. This is seen in totalitarian regimes who are 'playing God (acting like God), in the scientists and others who want to invent mundane things, to those using humans for devious and deviant experiments. We too must reflect what actions of ours attempt to play God, and strive to be humans that God intends us to be. 'God's Word, Daily Reflections 2024'
